DEATH OF REV. DR. DAVIS.

Eminent Methodist Minister Expires at Berkeley Springs.

Yesterday's Washington Star says: Information has reached Washington that Rev. Dr. Davis, formerly pastor of several of the Methodist Episcopal churches in this city, including Vaughn, Gorsuch, East Washington and Fifteenth-street, died at Berkeley Springs, Md., yesterday last. Death was due to neuritis of the heart. The deceased was seventy years of age. He had been ill only since Sunday afternoon, complaining of pain in his neck and left shoulder, and no thought of it resulting seriously. He returned Sunday morning he preached at the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he had been pastor for over two years, selecting for his text Hebrews vi, 4th, 5th and 6th verses, from which he delivered a most impressive sermon, and it was remarked that he seemed to be more earnest and possessed of greater power than he had displayed since he had been in charge there. It is thought he over-exerted himself and took cold after leaving the church.

Dr. Davis was a Virginian, having been born near Blacksburg, and had been in the Methodist ministry for fifty years. He leaves a widow, one son and three daughters, one of whom is Mrs. John Chauncey Brooks, of Baltimore.

The remains of the deceased have been interred at Berkeley Springs.

Dr. Davis entered the Baltimore Conference in 1845 and was regarded as one of the strongest men in it, was self-educated, a scientist and a linguist. He read Latin and Greek with ease and had a fair knowledge of the Hebrew language. He possessed a mathematical mind and was forceful and direct. He was scholarly in the pulpit and a fine debater. He was somewhat blunt and rugged, but always sincere. He exercised considerable political influence with administrations, national and State, and knew most public men. He was the personal friend of Bishop John H. Newman, who held him in high esteem.

ABATEMENT OF A NUISANCE.

New Stock Yards to Obviate Driving Cattle Through the Streets.

Richmond as a stock center will have its birth about January 15th next, and in the opening of the big depot of the Richmond Stock Yards Company, Richmond will be free from a nuisance that has driven more than one citizen to write appeals to the City Council.

On the authority of Mr. H. O. Brauer, one of the prime movers of the Stock Yards Company, it is stated that during the opening of the new yards the driving of herds of cattle, sheep and hogs through the city streets will entirely cease.

The plans for the buildings have been let out to the contractors to be bid upon, and the work will be pushed to completion.

Virginia Family Afflicted in Various Ways, But All Find Help

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures Dyspepsia and Other Troubles.
"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier with good results. I also took it while going through the critical period of my life which I have always dreaded. My age is 44 years and I never felt better in my life. About two months ago my arm was covered with carbuncles, but these have all healed since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. My little daughter had dyspepsia for two years and medicines did not give her permanent relief. She was obliged to stay out of school and I became discouraged. I began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla and now she is going to school every day, has a good appetite and sleeps well. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured my son of catarrh." MRS. MORE WITNESSES ARE EXAMINED.

ter site could have been secured. The location was made by General Otis and General Greene felt safe in denying the report that there had been collision with the railroad authorities in choosing the site. General Greene stated that the most flagrant evidence of neglect that he had seen during the war was in the case of the transports at New York. Their condition was of a character that should have been remedied. He had also seen green coffee issued both in Florida and at Manila.

FAVORABLE COMPARISONS.
Comparing the experience of his troops with those of Turkey and Russia, he said he had seen more suffering in the Turkish army in a day than he had seen in the American troops in a month, and there were 6,000 Russian troops ill by typhoid fever at the close of the Russian campaign. He spoke from observation and he believed the comparisons at every point were favorable to the American troops. Major Henry B. Hersey, of Santa Fe, N. M., of the Roosevelt Rough Riders, was next examined. He said the men were generally in good health at San Antonio.

He said the main at Tampa which was the next stopping place.

He complained, however, that at the latter place the camp was low and that toward the close of his stay there in July, there was an increase of fever and diarrhoea. The troops were, he said, well supplied with provisions from the commissary and other departments, but there was some complaint against the physician who was left with the squadron at this point of criticism appeared to be the hearing of the man toward the men.

MONTAUK POINT.
At the afternoon session, Major Hersey related his experiences and observations at Montauk Point. He had come North on the Miami, which was considered one of the worst of the transports. Still the voyage was not characterized by the usual discomforts. He considered Camp Wikoff the most perfect camp he had even seen.

This witness was followed by Colonel James G. Lee, who was chief quartermaster at Camp Thomas during the history of that camp. He said that neither the regular nor the volunteer had had the transportation facilities when they came in and their wants in this respect were supplied. He had immediately made estimates for supplies and all had been met with a remarkable degree of promptness.

NATURAL DIFFICULTIES.
Colonel Lee dwelt upon the natural difficulties of supplying an army of fifty-six thousand men. They were impatient as a rule and seemed to expect to be able to turn a hand and get everything they wanted upon the spur of the moment.

There were some articles of which they were never able to get a sufficient supply army trousers for instance. He remembered one occasion when he was making contracts with the railroad for the transportation of troops in which men who were his juniors in the Washington headquarters were manifestly in a disposition to interfere with him by presenting conditions with which it was impossible to comply. He had protested in sharp and vigorous language, and thereafter there was no trouble as the Washington office recoiled from its position.

ASKED FOR NAMES.
General McCook asked for the names of those who had interfered, and insisted upon having them. After hesitating somewhat, Colonel Lee said the difficulty arose in the transportation of the department in charge of Colonel H. H. Bird.

Pressed to enter into particulars, Colonel Lee said that his contention was that he should be allowed to make all the rates. He found that the railroad rates had been made at Washington, and while these were very low he found when he came to getting freight rates they were too high. He did not believe that any actual suffering had arisen on account of the inefficiency of officers. He thought, on the other hand, that the suffering had been caused by the failure of the men to control themselves. He thought the beer drinking in the camp and the whiskey drinking outside had much to do in causing distress and disease.

In conclusion, Colonel Lee said he believed that the department should have credit for what it had done, and not be blamed for what it had not done, and he thought the accomplishment of the past five months were simply marvellous.

CIVIL SERVICE ORDER.

The President Will Make No Modifications Till After Election.

The President has said to several congressional callers in the past few days that he will issue the long-delayed civil service order after the November elections and not before. The order, or orders, has been ready for the President's signature for some time and much pressure has been brought to bear upon him to issue it. He has been pointed out to the chief executive that to release a large number of places from the civil service now would encourage the Republican workers in the coming election and would be a fair knowledge of the Hebrew language. MRS. MCKINLEY'S BROTHER KILLED.

George Saxton Shot to Death by a Jealous Woman in Canton.

SHE HAD THREATENED HIS LIFE.

Former Murderer is Under Arrest, but Refuses to Make a Statement. Her Husband Had Divorced Her on Saxton's Account.

CANTON, OHIO, Oct. 7.—Special.—George Saxton, brother of Mrs. William McKinley, was shot to death at 6:30 o'clock this evening before the residence of Mrs. Eva B. Althouse, 219 Lincoln avenue, where he is presumed to have gone to make a call. Five shots were fired, three of which entered his body. Mrs. Anna George, a woman named under arrest on suspicion of the murder.

Saxton was unaccompanied when neighbors arrived to investigate the cause of the shooting, and was dead when the physicians and officers arrived. The former having expressed the opinion that death was instantaneous, three bullets entering vital spots. His position indicated that he had been on the step of the Althouse residence when the shots were fired.

The body was taken to an undertaker's room and placed in charge of the coroner.

LAST SEEN ALIVE.
Immediately after the autopsy it was taken to the home of Mr. E. M. Barclay, a brother-in-law of Mr. Saxton, where he made his last call. Mr. Saxton left his home about 5 o'clock, riding his bicycle, and this was last seen of him by his friends. The Althouse home was dark and locked, and the neighbors said Mrs. Althouse had not been at home for the past three days. One of the neighbors said that a woman, supposed to have done the shooting, had passed back of the house.

Mrs. George took her supper as usual at a downtown restaurant at 4:45, and according to the restaurant story, got off at Hazlet avenue, near the Althouse home. About 5 o'clock she was arrested and locked up. Trouble in locating her was due principally to the fact that she moved from her home yesterday.

HAD BEEN DIVORCED.
Mrs. Althouse is the divorced wife of Samuel C. George, who formerly was a tenant of Saxton in his downtown business block, conducting a dress-making business. She was divorced from him in Dakota and a proceeding filed in local courts by the husband against Saxton charged that Saxton had sent her there to secure the divorce, the proceeding here being a suit for damages for the alleged alienation of the wife's affections. This case has been through all the intermediate courts and was passed upon by the State Supreme Court on an interpleading and finally remanded for hearing on its merits here. Before this case was heard, the defendant of furniture, the defense of Saxton being that the articles were held for overdue rent in the rooms.

Mrs. Althouse in front of whose home the shooting occurred several months ago began proceedings against Mr. George alleging that her life had been threatened.

Gripman Charles F. Rittenhouse, of Car No. 2, said to a reporter:

SAW THE SHOOTING.
Mr. Henry Benham, residing at No. 199 west Third street, about 200 feet from the Althouse residence, said: "I was in the street when I heard the shooting, and saw the flash from the mouth of a gun. I went immediately to the door of the store and after about two minutes had elapsed, I heard two more shots. Before I heard the second shot, I saw a woman, or some one dressed in woman's clothes, go away from the Althouse steps, rather slowly, then turn around and go back again. At that time I heard the two more shots. This time the woman started to run. She left the premises and ran up vacant lot next to Mrs. R. M. Quinn's residence. We men then went across the road and found Saxton lying there."

Mrs. George maintained perfect self-control when arrested and refused to make a statement. It is common talk that Mrs. George made frequent threats of taking Saxton's life. Many of these threats are said to have been sent through the mails, and the Federal grand jury last fall indicted her for alleged improper use of the mails.

George gave bonds and the indictment so far as is known here is still alive.

Sample C. George, the husband, is reported to have been severely married in Wheeling over a year ago to Miss Lucy Graham, of Alliance. As soon as George got his divorce from Saxton he announced his second marriage.

Mrs. George got on her feet and deserted her for another.
